I have a confession for you.

Even though I have four kids, I am firmly and sternly anti-diaper bag.

I once had a frilly, totally “mommy” diaper bag that looked adorable, and my baby, in theory, would have loved it if she wasn't a baby and noticed such things. The bag fell apart in weeks, but I was relieved that I didn't have to drag that ugly thing out anymore.

These days, I'm all about the diaper bag that doesn't look like a diaper bag, which is why I am proud to present this roundup of some of the world's coolest diaper bags — for the world's coolest moms, of course.

The Sarah Grace Gold

That super artistic picture there is the newest addition to my non-diaper-bag diaper bag collection. Which, OK, OK, only consists of this particular bag because I love it. The kind folks at Lily Jade sent me the Sarah Grace Gold, which I use to fancy myself as fashionable as Grace Kelly.

In addition to being beautiful, of course, my favorite part of the Lily Jade bags is their removable baby bag organizer, which allows you to zip away all of your baby gear in complete and organized bliss. It can totally be removed in seconds if you happen to be lucky enough to go somewhere sans children and don't feel like switching over to your purse that hasn't seen the light of day in years anyways.

The Elizabeth in Camel

OK, one more from Lily Jade because this bag is the bag that haunts my dreams. In other words, it's the bag that I didn't know I needed until a few weeks ago when I took my four kids to Disney World, and I thought, "Wow, I wish I had a diaper bag that I could also throw on as a backpack when I have to park the stroller."

And then I realized that such a bag actually existed in the Elizabeth, and I could have kicked myself for not buying one. This bag is pretty, functional, and has straps on the back so you can literally just throw it on as a backpack for when your motherhood adventures require you to remain hands free. Love that.

Skip Hop Duo Signature Diaper Bag

I did some research and picked this nifty little bag up for its unique features. It has patented stroller clips so you can convert the bag to hang from your stroller, which, I think, is all kinds of awesome because I am forever losing my diaper bag into the abyss of the stroller basket at the precise moment that I need something from it.

It also has lots of outside pockets, which is something every parent totally needs in their life.

Batman Diaper Bag

Sorry, I couldn't resist because this diaper bag also features a burp cloth that looks like — you guessed it — a cape. I mean, seriously.

Carters' Joy Zip-Down Diaper Bag

I thought I'd end this roundup with a pretty and practical bag that is crazy affordable (under 40 bucks!) and sports a cool feature — a zip-down diaper-changing station. It's kind of handy if you happen to be the type to constantly misplace a changing pad (ahem) or just can't find a changing station when you're out and about in public. (Happens. All. The. Time.)

It also has a removable changing pad if you don't want to use the zip-down feature, but still, I thought it was pretty cool.

Target for the win, yet again.
